

Instant soup separating device

Usage A device that judges the quality of instant soup (appearance inspection of the box) and distributes it to two separated places.

Explanation Conventionally, air cylinders were used to open/close the separation gates. However, normal products sometimes jumped out of the conveyor due to the impact generated when the cylinder stops. Adopting the Elecylinder enabled adjustments on to the acceleration/deceleration, stopping the product from jumping out.